

Corporate Event AV Checklist

Work down it in order. Anything unticked at the load-in stage becomes a problem during the show.

Four weeks out

- ☐ Attendee count and seating layout confirmed with the venue
- ☐ Running order received from the client, with timings
- ☐ Presentation format confirmed (slides, video, live demo, remote speaker)
- ☐ Accessibility requirements agreed (captioning, hearing loop, interpretation)
- ☐ Site visit booked, or venue technical pack received
- ☐ Rigging points and weight limits confirmed in writing
- ☐ Power supply and location confirmed
- ☐ Get-in route measured — lift dimensions, stairs, distance to room

One week out

- ☐ Equipment list finalised and reserved against the dates
- ☐ Crew booked and briefed, with call times issued
- ☐ Transport booked, load and unload times agreed with the venue
- ☐ Speaker slides received, or a deadline for them agreed
- ☐ Rehearsal time confirmed in the schedule
- ☐ Backup plan agreed for the single point of failure (usually the laptop)
- ☐ Venue contact and on-site phone numbers circulated to the crew

Load-in

- ☐ Access confirmed on arrival, parking cleared
- ☐ Power tested at the socket before anything is plugged into it
- ☐ Rigging checked and signed off
- ☐ Audio system rung out, feedback margin checked at show level
- ☐ Every microphone tested, batteries fresh, spares labelled and to hand
- ☐ Screen and projector aligned, resolution matched to the source
- ☐ Presentation played end to end, including embedded video and audio
- ☐ Lighting focused, cues recorded
- ☐ Comms tested between all positions
- ☐ Cable runs matted or taped where the public walk

Show

- ☐ Presenters mic'd with time to spare, levels checked on each
- ☐ Spare handheld live and within reach
- ☐ Recording started, and confirmed to be recording
- ☐ Someone is watching the room, not only the desk

Strike

- ☐ Equipment counted back against the list before leaving
- ☐ Damage or loss noted and photographed on site
- ☐ Venue signed off, keys and passes returned
- ☐ Client debrief booked while the event is still fresh

Everything above happens after the job is won. CueQuote handles the part before it — describe the event and get a branded, priced proposal out the same hour instead of the same week.

Start free at cuequote.com